Learn How to Use Art to Reinforce Deeper Learning
Through Reality-based Perspectives with Scientific Illustration: da Vinci's Curiosity
and *M.C. Escher: The Aesthetics of Symmetry

- ♦ Education that naturally reflects the world it teaches allows the ability to apply knowledge from a multidisciplinary, reality-based perspective. Learning through art has the power to expand and influence traditional STEM fields of study, as well as other subjects across the board. A curriculum that infuses art based in mathematical elements can lead students to better understanding of all subjects.

At this workshop, you'll receive:

- ♦ Methods to discuss art and make art to engage students of all abilities.
- ♦ Lesson guides, visual aids, hand-outs and art making instruction.
- ♦ Art supplies used during the workshop.
- ♦ Inspiration and instruction on how to look at and discuss art with students to strengthen skills and learning across the curriculum.

Teachers' comments: "The trainings keep me feeling inspired and joyous. I look forward to them so much."~"Thank you for role-modeling positive art instruction."~"Outstanding, valuable program!"~"An invaluable addition to a public school classroom."~"Thank you! I include these lessons toward my professional development and I use it in my Domain 4 evidence as part of my teacher evaluation."
